The Lymans were denied the permit when the county determined their application was voided when ownership of the property in question changed hands. Because the Timberlakes water system has an unapproved rating, no new permits have been issued for the subdivision. After much discussion, the board authorized the building inspector to complete the Lyman plan review, in anticipation of possible water system rating change in May.

The board said a permit would be issued, if the water system received a corrective action rating from the
